On Friday, March 2 a breakthrough "open skies" agreement was reached between Europe and the United States. The agreement consists of the Air Transport Agreement negotiated in November 2005 and enhancements added over the course of three rounds of talks this year. "Our initial reaction is that there seems to be a substantially improved balance in the wording of the agreement," said Association of European Airlines General Ulrich Schulte-Srathaus. John R. Byerly, U.S. State Department Deputy Assistant Secretary of Transportation Affairs, added that if the pact is passed "Europe and the United States will seize the opportunity to make aviation history and change the world for the better."

Currently, flights are restricted by a number of bilateral deals that have been negotiated by individual governments. The new pact opens transatlantic aviation, thus liberalizing air service between the two continents.

Under terms of the new deal, which was negotiated by the European Commission, air travel will open up and go beyond the treaties currently in effect between the United States and the 27 countries that comprise the European Commission (EU). Terms include:

- U.S. airlines will be free to fly to all EU airports and continue on to other destinations.

- EU members will be able to fly into any U.S. airport and on to other destinations.

- U.S. airlines may secure wider access for services into London's Heathrow airport.

- U.S. all-cargo airlines will have limited "fifth freedom" rights, or the right to fly between the members states of the EU, primarily United Parcel Service in Cologne and FedEx from Paris.

- Rights for U.S. carriers will remain unchanged in 16 out of the 27 EU members since the U.S. already has unlimited access to these markets

A key component of the deal will not involve changing foreign ownership rules in the U.S. Under current government policy, foreign ownership of domestic airlines is limited to 25-percent voting rights. Experts who have reviewed the new agreement said that passage of the pact would make it easier for European companies to buy up to 100 percent of non-voting shares while limiting U.S. investments in the EU markets to previous rules and regulations.

It would appear that foreign and domestic industry analysts are bullish on the "open skies"

Mesa Announces New Pilot Minimums

Mesa Airlines has announced new pilot minimum qualifications for first officers: 500 TT, 100 ME, and a COMM/INST/ME/RTOP. Pilots interested in submitting an application can apply online by visiting their Web site at www.mesa-air.com.

American Eagle Announces New Pilot Minimums

American Eagle has lowered their pilots minimums: 800 TT, 100 ME, COMM/INST/ME, and RTOP. First officers interested in a position with Eagle can apply online at www.AmericanEagleCareers.com.

UPS Aircraft Order Update

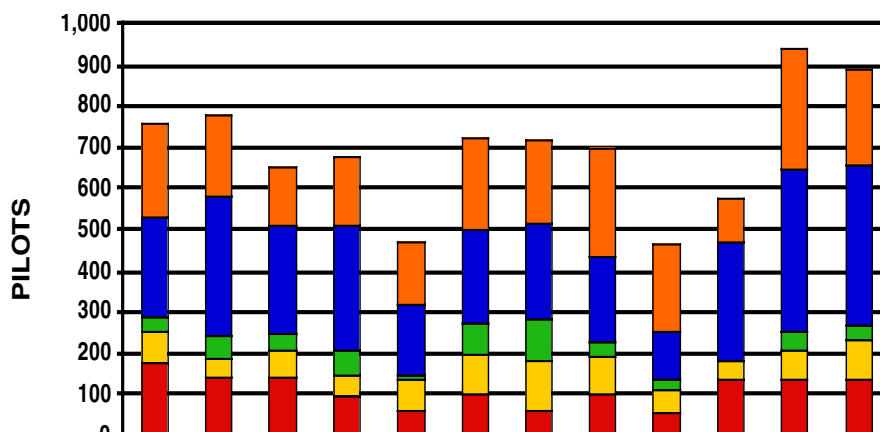

United Parcel Service (UPS) ordered 27 B767-300ERFs in February for delivery 2009 through 2012. UPS also has an outstanding order for ten A380Fs. Early March UPS canceled its order for ten A-380F freighters. UPS and Airbus had reached a previous agreement that delayed delivery of the aircraft from 2009 to the years 2010 through 2012. UPS said that it is no longer confident that Airbus can deliver the aircraft on schedule.

Raising Age 60 Rule

In January the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) proposed raising the mandatory pilot retirement age from age 60 to 65. Recently members of the House aviation subcommittee have introduced a bill to accelerate the FAA's plans. The International Civil Aviation Organization raised their retirement age to 65 last November.

Career Seminar Package

Career Day Seminar Sat. 8:00AM-2:00PM

Ensure your job search achieves maximum success in minimum time! Be the best prepared candidate. Our all-day seminar will educate, motivate, and give you the edge over your competition. Come to the seminar and spend the day with experts who will deliver the most current insights on a successful career plan for you.

Airline Forum Sat. 2:00PM-4:00PM

Learn directly from the airline recruiters about their hiring and fleet plans, and general subjects of interest to everyone, thereby allowing more time for individualized questions to be asked in the Job Fair.

Job Fair Sat. 4:00PM-8:00PM

Meet face-to-face with key recruiters, personally deliver your résumé, ask questions, and learn more about the companies you are pursuing at the Job Fair after the seminar. Our counselors and staff will be on hand to answer your questions about career development and your job search plan. Aviation training vendors will be present to provide the latest information on type ratings, ATPs, and much more—Don't miss it!

6 Career Workshops • Friday and Sunday

MILITARY TO AIRLINE TRANSITION

Jim Carman Friday 12:00-3:00 PM

Compare the airline pilot life to your military career. This workshop covers pay, benefits, insurance, pass privileges, time off and flexibility, the ins and outs of initial—upgrade—and recurrent training, bidding, reserve status, holding the line, commuting, the jump seat, health care, state income tax issues, military reserve considerations, and more.

CREW RESOURCE MANAGEMENT IN THE INTERVIEW

Kit Darby Friday 3:30-6:30PM
Introduction/Refresher Course

Get an overview of all CRM concepts including questions used in pilot selection. Taught by an experienced airline CRM instructor who will challenge and entertain you while you learn how to ace your airline interview. Plus decision making and stress management.

RÉSUMÉS/APPLICATIONS

Becky Dean Friday 7-10PM

Get the maximum score from your résumés and cover letters. Ensure your résumé has the form, content, and presentation necessary to get the maximum score. Find out how to handle problems on your application.

INTERVIEW SURVIVAL

B. Dean, K. Darby, J. Carman Sunday 7:30-10:30AM

Watch mock interviews and let our panel coach you to a better score by giving high-scoring answers to the toughest questions. We'll cover how to discuss your problems and weaknesses and still get the job, plus reveal the qualities or themes the airlines look for in your answers.

TESTING/SIMULATOR CHECK

Kit Darby Sunday 11:15AM-2:15PM

Receive a pre-employment sim briefing complete with pitch attitudes and power settings. Improve your score and reduce preparation cost of your sim check. Plus, learn which airlines use which simulators, airports, and maneuvers. Take sample tests, learn which references you should study, and the best resources to use. Learn which tests are given at each airline currently interviewing and how to handle problems on your application.

MILITARY TO AIRLINE TRANSITION

Jim Carman Sunday 2:30-5:30 PM

RÉSUMÉ CRITIQUES

We evaluate your résumé against the current airline scoring system for proper content, format, paper, and print quality to improve the effectiveness of your résumé. Critiques regularly $35; at seminar only $25.

idea saying that greater access between the U.S. and EU could generate 26 million additional transatlantic passengers over the next five years, provide up to US$15.8 billion in economic benefits, and create approximately 80,000 new jobs in Europe and the U.S. Analysts also noted that ratification of the pact may cause restructuring in the industry, possibly leading to mergers between airlines.

The Air Line Pilots Association (ALPA) is keeping a reserved demeanor regarding the EU-US pact. ALPA representatives, who were at Brussels during the presentation, said they have doubts that ratification will open new job opportunities in the U.S. ALPA also stated that, though they are pleased that restrictions on U.S. carriers entering Heathrow will be lifted, the agreement does little to provide additional landing slots for existing U.S. carriers or new slots for new carriers entering the market in the future.

The US-EU "open skies" agreement will be voted on by the EU transport ministers on March 22. Approval of all members is necessary before the new agreement can be initiated on October 28, 2007. What remains to be seen is whether the U.S. and Europe will reap equal benefits if the agreement is approved. ➔
